MEMBER LETTER:

We saw God's providence in our need

God's providence began the moment Elizabeth injured her knee at a teen camp. One of the counselors is a physical therapist, who identified the problem as a dislocated patella. Our orthopedic doctor was on vacation, but God provided an appointment with a knee specialist. We prayed Elizabeth would not need surgery, and he confirmed she didn't.

We have been so encouraged by being on the receiving end of members' shares. When we joined Samaritan Ministries about eighteen months ago, it felt like a leap of faith. Neither my husband nor I had ever been without insurance. We chose Samaritan precisely because we wanted to be faithful and to trust God to provide for our needs. We have sent our shares joyfully each month, knowing it was helping a fellow believer. Now, with our first need published, we have been so encouraged by the checks and notes from all over the country and the prayers behind them. It feels faithful because it is faithful.

Verbal Warming

by Dr. Peter Jones

We are not surprised to hear that political freedom in the world has declined for a fifth straight year, especially in the Middle East and in North Africa. But loss of freedom in the West does surprise us. Freedom has shrunk partly because of silencing "hate speech."

Is the "climate of hate" warming or cooling here at home? The political pundits of the Left predict a violent and fiery future, which fits their present ideological needs. Some even claim that Right Wing violent political speech caused the Tucson massacre. Though recently abandoned by the electorate, the progressive Left still pursues a goal to silence opposing speech and thus to mute the cut and thrust of valid political debate.

Their charges are not idle threats. Politicians call for the application of the so-called "Fairness Doctrine," to regulate content on the airwaves, and Jewish Funds for Fairness, heavily financed by the Leftist billionaire George Soros and inspired by the Marxist Saul Alinsky, is seeking to silence Right Wing pundits in order "to transform society...and create a more just world." The just society will emerge when anti-socialist discourse is eliminated.

In the political debate about man-made global warming, free speech is constantly threatened. Based on the oft-repeated "truth" that "the science is settled," and that we should proceed post haste to spend $15-20 trillion to implement policies based on such solid scientific "fact," the leading power-brokers, many of them worshipers of Goddess Nature, regularly deny free speech to those in the opposite camp. The skeptics are trashed as "deniers" (as in "holocaust deniers"), and some have been denied access to the climate conferences in Copenhagen (2009) and Cancun (2010), where the proceedings in the opening ceremony last December were dedicated to the Mayan goddess Ixchel.

Opponents of the reigning climate-change ideology are not a miniscule idiot fringe. In fact, the Oregon Institute of Science and Medicine collected the signatures of 31,000 scientists opposed
